

The Beginnings of Slavery in America

Africans arrived in Jamestown against their will. It is believed that they arrived as baptized Christians and therefore were labeled indentured servants. Indentured servants worked without pay for a period of five to seven years. After they worked enough to pay for their passage to the new land, they were set free.

The arrival of Africans made it possible to expand the tobacco economy.

